Good morning Parents,

Wildwood school has compiled an incredible list of digital resources that can be accessed from home, and we have communicated directly to families, while also communicating any specific recommendations we have for each student. The site is a dynamic website, full of resources, that is updated daily. Teachers are uploading specific resources for their classroom, and our staff has started producing and uploading videos as well. Here is the weblink to our site in the event you would like to share it with other families or check it out yourself.

We also send out paper packets through the mail every two weeks for daily work, including hard copies of various activities that can be completed at home. Our students are at Wildwood for a reason, and require specialized instruction, as such - we have focused on mastered skills, and presenting materials in a familiar fashion (as close to their activities during the school day as possible). As this situation continues to develop, we are continuing to talk about ways that we can get more activities out to our families. We will be talking with families weekly to determine if they prefer to receive materials via email or in the mail; as a default, we will be sending materials home, if we haven't heard back from them. We document all parent and student contact in the communication log on IEP Direct.

Our teachers and social workers have been reaching out to families, at least a few times each week sharing sample schedules to follow at home, examples of activities that can be completed, and student specific recommendations. Related Service providers are reaching out to families weekly, using a variety of tele-practice options, to engage students in the most meaningful way and address their IEP goals to the fullest extent possible. Contacts are being logged in the parent contact log.

Teachers and related service providers are interacting with students and families, via Google Meets for instruction, therapies, class meetings, and regular check-ins. A virtual IEP folder has been made accessible to all families, for their individual child's IEP goals, to work on at home. Wildwood staff has also been continuing our school backpack program, delivering healthy food, to our families in need, involving no contact and adhering to social distancing protocols.
